

Specialty Coordinator

The Yale University School of Nursing (www.nursing.yale.edu) is seeking a leader to coordinate our Family Nurse Practitioner and Adult/Gerontological Primary Care Nurse Practitioner specialties, working collaboratively with all primary care specialties in our Master's Program.

The mission of Yale School of Nursing is "better health for all people." Yale School of Nursing has long been an innovator and leader in education, practice, and research. We were the first U.S. university-based nursing program and a leader in direct entry nursing for second-degree candidates. Our graduate entry pre-specialty in nursing (GEPN), nurse practitioner, midwifery, DNP, and PhD programs are world class and draw top quality students from around the globe. Faculty research covers a wide array of topics. We are national leaders in self and family management with patients and families with chronic health conditions, maternal and child health, symptom science, palliative care, sleep science, global health, genomics, and other innovative research areas. YSN scientists collaborate with colleagues across Yale, including the Center for Clinical Investigation supported by a Clinical and Translational Science Award, the Schools of Public Health and Medicine, the Veteran's Health Administration, and community agencies.

Faculty members in the Yale School of Nursing contribute to the tripartite mission of practice, scholarship, and teaching. We are seeking a doctorally prepared family nurse practitioner, with academic leadership experience who is board certified, eligible for ladder rank appointment as an assistant, associate, or full professor, and is committed to better health for all people through quality nursing education.

Come join us in this exciting venture at Yale!

Screening of applications will begin September 30, 2016 and will continue until the position is filled. Interested candidates should apply, online, by submitting a curriculum vita and cover letter describing their qualifications: <https://apply.interfolio.com/38182>. All application materials and correspondence will be kept confidential.

Yale University School of Nursing is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Men, persons with disabilities, protected veterans, persons of all gender identities and sexual orientations, and members of underrepresented ethnic and racial groups are encouraged to apply.
